ALL GIRLS — MAKES all THE — DIFFERENCE

DIVINE SAVIOR HOLY ANGELS HIGH SCHOOL

I'm so proud of not only her academic prowess but her confidence level – to feel no fear, to be comfortable in herself.

– Felita Ashley, DSHA Parent

“When girls don't have to compete for airtime in the classroom they can concentrate on learning and being who they are.”

– Paola Hernandez, DSHA Parent

“We have seen with our own eyes how our daughter became a true leader.”

– Todd Hernandez, DSHA Parent

Divine Savior Holy Angels High School: It's synonymous with outstanding faculty. A rigorous college-prep atmosphere in which 100 percent of the graduating class enrolls in college, many at top universities. Top-notch arts, athletics and co-curriculars. All the measurables.

But there's something more. It's the essence of the DSHA young woman. The unshakable self-confidence. The “I've got this” approach to everything she does. The strength of her faith, heart and intellect.

LIFE

What happens when girls thrive together is nothing less than a sisterhood.

Here, every student supports her DSHA sisters, because in her fellow classmates and in their every effort, she recognizes herself.

The DSHA student learns to challenge herself, speak up, realize her potential, and lead her peers. The DSHA graduate is a confident, capable, thoughtful leader, ready for the 21st Century.

It all starts the day she walks in these doors.

At DSHA, girls do everything, so they learn they can do anything.

Your daughter can do anything. Make sure she knows it.

“Single-sex programs create a classroom climate in which students can express themselves freely and develop higher order thinking skills.”

– Dr. Rosemary Salomone, Columbia University's Teacher College Record

LEARNING

DSHA students benefit from faculty who focus entirely on how girls learn best.

Attention isn't diverted, and class time isn't disrupted. Students get right down to business – the business of learning.

LEADERSHIP

The DSHA young woman becomes a critical thinker. An effective communicator. A spirit-filled believer who knows how to work for what she believes in.

She leads and she shines. She can be the club president, the athletic star, the retreat leader. She knows there's nothing she can't do.

“The single gender experience... enables girls to breathe deeply in a place where people are like themselves.”

– Ilana DeBare, Where Girls Come First
